To Whom It May Concern:

I am delighted to recommend Wendy Dallas to you as Script supervisor, par excellence. I have had the pleasure of working with Wendy for the past seven years on two successful CBS series: THE GUARDIAN and THE UNIT. Wendy's unfailing attention to detail is always front and center; she arrives fully prepared and ready to work.

Her script notes are always complete and clear, and all my editors were more than appreciative of her attention and communication of the myriad of scenic details.

Most impressive is Wendy's continuity breakdowns which go above and beyond the norm, highlighting significant continuity issues that might arise and provides a "heads up" in writing to all departments -- make-up, hair, wardrobe, set dressing and props -- preparing them well in advance of what lies ahead in each day's work.

Another of Wendy's fine attributes is that she is never "chatty" on set; she communicates with purpose and always to the point. Her manner with the crew, actors and production staff is professional, cooperative, and kind. And, what I love about her most is her wicked sense of humor.

Wendy maintains a constant, vigilant watch on the story's continuity and integrity. She will be a great asset to your production.

Sincerely,

Vahan Moosekian,
Executive Producer

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to recommend Wendy Dallas. Highly.

Wendy script-supervised two films I directed, a feature ("Manny & Lo," Sony Classics) and a half-hour short ("Best Offer," Tapestry Int'l.). In both cases her contribution was so valuable that I find it almost painful to imagine the process without her. Not only did she handle the technical aspects of the job with extraordinary precision and chops; she brought her apparently limitless warmth, wisdom and calm to the equally important "human" aspects.

Because I was a script supervisor myself for many years -- I worked on features directed by Jim Jarmusch, James Ivory, Jeremiah Chechick and Abel Ferrara; on the television series "Law and Order"; and on over a hundred television commercials -- I know what a daunting combination of skills the job requires, and this knowledge makes me appreciate Wendy all the more.

On the technical side, Wendy is a Continuity Queen: she spots mismatches almost before they happen, and she never fails to catch those potentially disastrous inconsistencies that result from last-minute inspirations. (Like when an actor ad-libs the name "Bob" for "THE NEIGHBOR", Wendy will remind you that he already slipped in a "Dave" for him three weeks ago). Wendy's suggestions -- whether to add a shot, tweak a line, or slip in some clarifying bit of business -- almost always enhance the work. Often they flat-out save the day.

On the human side, Wendy manages to correct actors' lines, debate screen direction with the cameraman, suggest coverage to the director, all with uncanny grace and tact, always well clear of everybody else's toes. Her ego never enters the discussion, and her manner is always more soothing than irritating, even when she's the bearer of bad news (as in, "I know you loved that take, but it doesn't match the reverse.")

I would say that the more delicate, if not to say difficult, your creative team is, particularly the actors, the more invaluable Wendy's presence on the set. She is always calm, considerate, and usually smiling, and when circumstances warrant it, she can be a downright blast.

Sincerely,

Lisa Krueger

Memo To: Mr. Franco Bario
From: Robert Sonntag
Topic: Wendy Dallas

Dear Franco,

I am writing you this fax to tell you that I think Wendy Dallas is the best script supervisor I have ever worked with. As a First Assistant Director, it is imperative that I have complete faith in the script supervisor. Wendy is not only the most attentive and professional script supervisor I have worked with, she is also the nicest, consistently. She is fun to be with, and I enjoy working with her.

I tried to call you on the phone, but I have to go out on a location scout in North Carolina. If you want to ask me any questions, I'll be in the office tomorrow.

More about Wendy: What I really like about her is her thoroughness. In addition to being right there in the middle of things, she comes up with suggestions and ideas without hesitating. This is good. What I mean is this: She will risk asking a question that other supervisors might not ask for fear of "over-covering" the scene. With Wendy, you can always rely on her as your fall-back.

If I were a major league pitcher, I'd want Wendy as my catcher, every game. She's that good! I know you will grow to appreciate her as I have. Good luck. Please call.
